

25 SEATS IN 25 DAYS

The House is in play and the Republican Majority is in jeopardy with 25 days left until Election Day.

From a shift in the national environment toward Democrats to the down-ballot drag caused by Mitt Romney and Congressman Paul Ryan, Republicans are in trouble and Democrats are on offense.

DEMOCRATS LEADING IN THE POLLS

Three recent national polls found a growing number of voters prefer Democrats to Republicans in the race for Congress.

Polls were conducted in July, August and September 2012.

Polling clearly shows that Republicans are either losing or sinking and Democrats are leading or surging. Races that are competitive are increasingly Democratic and races that were out of reach are now in play.

DCCC OUTRAISES NRCC AGAIN . . .

Fueled by record grassroots support from voters who are rejecting Republicans in Congress and the Romney-Ryan ticket, Democrats outraised the NRCC overwhelmingly—by about a 2-to-1 margin—in August.

Despite being in the minority, the DCCC has outraised the NRCC by nearly $12 million this cycle.

BUT SUPER PACS ARE COMING TO THE RESCUE

Shadowy front groups led by Karl Rove, the billionaire Koch brothers and countless others are already on the air and say they plan to spend "tens of millions" more by Election Day.

Some wealthy donors who have made financial commitments to the Romney campaign are reneging, and instead, opting to send their money to Republican Congressional candidates who they see as having a better chance of winning next month.

IN THE AIR AND ON THE GROUND

Our campaign is forcing Republicans to defend the indefensible: their agenda that puts millionaires first and Medicare and the middle class last. All of this adds up to a daunting scenario for Republicans entering the final stretch of this campaign.
