Article: Sirocco – Bangkok Nightlife / Thailand
Date: October 22, 2013

Kein modernes Design, nein, der Wellness-Tempel residiert in einem klassischen vierstöckigen Haus im Thai-Stil, ausgestattet mit wunderschönen Teakholz. Da werden dann die Breitling-Uhren abgelegt, die Prada-Tasche verschwindet im Schrank, der Versace-Dress kommt auf den Bügel – und schon geht es unter den kundigen Händen der Thai-Masseurinnen in den süßen Himmel – Luxus pur!
Sirocco Sky Bar (Bangkok, Thailand)

The place to go for a night standing awkward, surrounded by tourists, sipping overpriced cocktails. With cocktails starting around 520, means the views must be amazing, they're okay I guess. If anything go for one drink then move on (if you can find a taxi willing to take you). The best indication of tourist traps in Bangkok is where taxi drivers know they can easily scam you. The Lebua Hotel a prime target as taxi after taxi pull up to try to take us off. A forced walk to nearby streets finds the honest drivers. If you do plan on visiting the Sky Bar bring an old person (or maybe a company). We did and were given seats at the Sirocco Restaurant. I go with the Hangover director famously served an location to crew/filming the Hangover 2. Meh. As far as rooftop bars go Bangkok has a lot of them. Take your pick. Personally I prefer lower levels of skyline where you can actually see buildings. As a Bangkok resident I prefer the rooftop bars at Skyline Jazz Club (below right) or my local Long Table in Sukhumvit.

Singapore Slings (Downtown, Singapore)

In a city where everyone is a foodie the best drink they can master is the Singapore Sling? Singapore Slings are horrible and my guess is Singaporean’s are ashamed of them. More of a bad drink than a drink. Please do not waste time and money at the Raffles Long Bar. Embarrassing. Of course I haven’t been myself but I know US$20 is better spent elsewhere. I personally want for a cheaper option. Singapore Sling at Clarke Quay. Matching garnish to create an ugly blend of Horribleness. In for a penny in for a pound I did this at the Riverside Hostel. Probably listening to Gangnam Style.

What hot guys do
10/21/2013 8:48:29 AM EAT / Thailand

Name: Nikhil Deokar
Age: 31
What he’s doing now: Sales manager - Oldbridge
Status: Life up ahead says “5’10” 4’4”
Where he likes to eat: I rarely won’t be original when I say that my favorite restaurant is Sirocco at Tower Club at Lebua. Wishing as a salesperson for a premium quality paper producer and supplier for the hotel restaurants, makes me slightly curious about how the best chefs can make the best use of the product I sell to them. We certainly work with few restaurants in Bangkok but I personally find Sirocco the best one. And not only because they are our best customer. Just look at this stunning panoramic of Bangkok when you stand on the 66th floor. All the city lights and firey hues you leave down below. Eat, relax and live out of daily stress. Moreover, excellent service!

What he likes to eat: When it comes to the menu, its composition will meet even the highest set expectations.

As a “pepper head” I usually go for the dishes where pepper is strongly disposable.

Buffalo Mozzarella is my first choice for a starter. Also, Filet Boscaise gives you unbelievable rich and delicately buttery flavor.

For the main course, my number one is the Flagon Beef Tenderloin. Very tender and succulent, delight you with every bite you take. Accurately seasoned with Kampot pepper which is regarded as the best pepper in the world, enhancing the dish with outstanding aroma and flavor.

It also looks like there is not even a gram of fat. Really important for someone who wants to stay fit.

Regarding dessert, well, this was always my girlfriend’s privilege to choose but at the moment, I’m looking for someone who could take care of this sweet part of dinner.

Bangkok Restaurant Launches Cutting-Edge Menu: 'China 2020'

Breeze restaurant in Bangkok has launched a new cutting-edge menu featuring contemporary dishes designed to give guests an interactive dining experience.

The Chinese restaurant Breeze in Bangkok features a new cutting-edge menu of contemporary dishes designed to give the guests an interactive dining experience.

Breeze, a Chinese restaurant located in the five-star Lebua hotel in Bangkok has launched a new, cutting-edge food menu called "China 2020." The innovative menu is a result of the "rise of China's affluent middle class," which in recent years is changing the way the Chinese dine, according to a source close to the restaurant.

"The Innovative China 2020 menu is inspired by the new level of sophistication we are seeing in the way the Chinese dine. With the rise of China's affluent middle class in recent years, the direction of dining is pointing toward a greater variety of healthful and medicinal cuisine, better quality ingredients, and a more experimental and experimental attitude," Breeze's master chef San Pong explained.

"Many young professionals who grew up eating traditional Chinese dishes prepared at home by their mothers are now using their disposable income to enjoy the fun of dining out at upscale restaurants."
Bangkok’s lebua Shows Off New Interactive Menu

October 22, 2013

Locals in the know have caught onto this new trend of interactive dining, and we hear that lebua hotel in Bangkok is the next to jump on the bandwagon.

Breeze, the hotel’s Chinese restaurant, has created a new, interactive dining menu called China 2020 (think food and cocktails inspired by China’s hottest dining trends).

The China 2020 menu allows diners to enjoy both traditional and modern favorites, with an interactive experience that includes mixing their own cocktails and rolling a dice to determine their “lucky” sauce for steaks.

Guests may choose any of the following five entrees:

Discovery - Diners must break open a box of salt to reveal a box hiding their entrée - a roast duck with water chestnuts, shiitake mushrooms and Chinese wine.

Back in Time - This traditional dish of lamb shanks with Chinese cabbage and mushrooms is served in a nympha basket.

Appearance - “7 Stars Around The Moon” features eight small dishes with ingredients including lobster, foie gras, King Crab and sea urchin.

Excitement - Guests put their dinner in the hands of fate by rolling a dice to see which of six sauces will be served with Omi beef.

Youth - Celebrating a modern, Western classic, this “Chinese burger” is served with vegetable fries.

Photograph of the week: Lebua at State Tower

Lebua at State Tower is known for its golden dome with its fantastic view, fine dine cuisine and luxury accommodation. It became especially famous after the launch of the well known film "The Hangover Part II" and now is a ‘must see, must stop’ destination when visiting Bangkok, Thailand. The image below was taken during Jon Raho’s first visit to the place, and it really took his breath away. Upon arriving at the State Tower, you are greeted by the hotel staff and escorted to the rooftop where the Dome is located as well as the fine dinning “Sirocco” restaurant and “Sky Bar”. They are very strict about taking photographs and only allow you to take them at the the sky bar, and of course no tripods! Which is a shame as it really limits the photos you can take. The image was taken hand held with the ISO all the way at 1600.
